1. Navigate to Schedule Builder in DukeHub (dukehub.duke.edu)>Registration>Schedule Builder.

2. Select the appropriate term from the drop-down menu.

3. Select Your Availability. Select the days and times you are not available to take classes (ex. practice or study time).
4. Add Classes. Edit the Add Classes filters as necessary. The Class Status criteria filters classes when the schedule is generated, not when the classes are added to the initial list. We strongly encourage students to select the Closed, Open, and Waitlisted options after registration opens for the term.

5. Add courses of interest. You can search for courses by subject or course attribute (ex. Seminar or Mode of Inquiry). At this stage of the process, all sections of the courses are included. Review the course description in the Details section. Select the Add button.
6. View class information. After you have added a class, click on the subject and catalog number to view more details about the class, such as the number of sections offered, the number of seats available, and class attributes. For more information, click the Details icon.

Note: To add a specific title of a topics course select the drop down arrow. Students can select select one or more specific topics or leave the default any course topic to bring back all options.
